

Editorial

Dear Readers/ Research Scholars,

A famous poet of Indian Sanskrit literature ‘‘BHARTHURUHARI’’ divides all the people into three categories. People of first category never start any work. They do nothing to achieve their goals. In the beginning itself, they think of the hurdles or the difficulties which may come on the way. They will be discouraged themselves by it and keep quiet. People of second category start their work and go on the way and do something. After facing hurdles or difficulties, they will also be discouraged and give up the attempt. But People of third category never think about the hurdles or difficulties that may come on the way. They start their work with full confidence and determination. If the hurdles or difficulties come on the way, they face them with courage and go ahead. They will not stop until the goal is reached. So my dear readers we must belong to the third category of the above said persons and achieve our goals.

*“Let us go ahead with courage and determination.
We will definitely reach our destination”*
